

Capt. Dutch Recardo, animal trainer, with the Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill (Himself) coming to Ogden with the Sells-Floto Circus, and Buffaloe Bill (Himself), Friday, June 12.

A love of the "big top," with its waving banners, the "pad room" and the great, yellowed interior of the circus, a love of the romance of it all and the glitter and the glamor, resulted in a visit to this city this morning of an author who has contributed to nearly forty magazines and motion picture companies.

Courtney Riley Cooper is his name and besides being a member of the Authors' League of America and a consulting editor of the Photoplay Clearing House of New York, he is the press agent of the Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill (himself), which is to play a one day's engagement here Friday, June 12.

Incidentally there is a reason for the press agent's affection for the atmosphere of the "white tops." "When I was a boy in Kansas City I ran away from school and became a clown in a circus for one whole summer," Mr. Cooper explained, "and once you follow the elephants away, you're inoculated. When spring comes you want to hear the bands and see the spangles and—"

"But speaking of spangles and that sort of thing, have you looked over the list of features for the Sells-Floto-Buffalo Bill combination? First of all, of course, comes Buffalo Bill (himself), who will present an entirely new spectacle, entitled "Warpath," in which his Indians, his cowboys, his riders, his ropers and his wranglers will depict the growth of civilization from the frontier days until the present time. And in addition there'll be more circus acts than ever before, including forty clowns.

"And just as a means of clinching that argument here's a reason. The usual circus has three rings and two stages, hasn't it? The Sells-Floto-Buffalo Bill aggregation will have two stages, two arenas and three rings. That means there must be practically one-third more acts this year than the ordinary circus. Why, our canvas when it's all stretched out covers eleven acres, and in the big tent there is a seating capacity for 14,000 persons.

"A parade? Certainly. At 10:30 o'clock the morning of the show with everything on view. The two-mile-long spectacle will be led by Buffalo Bill (himself), America's best beloved citizen, as a special honor to this city. And, by the way, the price of the show this year is as low as ever, 25 cents."—(Advertisement).

RECALLS THE KILLING OF PAT DESMOND IN OGDEN

A dispatch from Detroit, Michigan, gives the information that Thomas S. Todd of Kansas City yesterday jumped to his death from a nine-story window. The man was suffering of tuberculosis, which might have been the cause of his rash act. He was identified by the officers as a Utah ex-convict, who also served a term in the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City.

This news recalls a tragedy in Ogden when the United States courts had jurisdiction in Utah during territorial times when all prosecutions for high crime were instituted under indictments by federal grand juries. On February 28, 1890, Thomas H. Todd shot to death in the Capital saloon on Twenty-fifth street, a man named Patrick J. Desmond. He was tried before a jury and the late Judge H. P. Henderson on the charge of murder in the first degree and was convicted of voluntary manslaughter. He was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary at Salt Lake and was taken to that institution by B. A. Bowman, now city sewer inspector, who was then a United States deputy marshal. Mr. Bowman says that Todd served his time.

The Capital saloon was conducted in the place now occupied by John F. Smith on Twenty-fifth street, between Hudson and Grant avenues. The shooting occurred at the north end of the bar when Todd and Desmond got into an altercation over a handkerchief and a glove which Desmond thought Todd had taken from his pocket. Desmond told Todd that he would fight a man as quickly for stealing a handkerchief from him as if he stole a horse. Words followed, in which Todd resented the imputation that he was a thief and he suddenly drew a revolver and shot Desmond in the mouth. The man fell to the floor mortally wounded, but Todd continued to fire after Desmond had fallen. At the trial, it was contended that Desmond was the aggressor.

The prosecutors at the time were C. S. Varian, United States attorney, and David Evans, then of Ogden, assistant. Judge H. H. Henderson was clerk of the court, which was then known as the First district court, and L. B. Best of Ogden was deputy clerk. E. H. Parsons was United States marshal and B. A. Bowman, deputy. The committing magistrate was the late Thomas D. Dee who was the justice of the peace. G. R. Belnap was sheriff. Judge Dee made an order binding Todd over to the grand jury without bail. The verdict rendered against Todd was read in open court June 26, 1890.

Desmond came here from Pueblo, Colo., and was known as a gunman.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING LAST EVENING

This has indeed been a busy week for the gods of love and marriage. Numbered among the June brides is Miss Adella C. West, fifth daughter of Mrs. Sadie West, whose marriage to William Ambrose Wright, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose B. Wright, was solemnized last evening of 328 Thirty-second street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Earl West, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The nuptial vows were taken just at 7 o'clock in an exquisite setting of pink and white roses and peonies and President James Witherspoon of the North Weber stake performed the impressive ceremony. Miss West looked wonderfully charming and radiant in a pretty gown of embroidered voile with pearl and shadow lace trimmings. Miss Florence West, sister of the bride, as maid of honor wore an embroidered voile gown of pretty design. Mr. Wright wore the conventional black and was attended by his brother, Mr. Raymond Wright, as best man. Only the immediate relatives of the wedding, but immediately following the ceremony an elaborate reception was held until midnight, about seventy-five relatives and friends of the bride and groom attending.

Throughout the rooms of the West home tall vases and jardinières of pink, white and red roses and peonies were prettily placed lending fragrance as well as beauty to the affair.

In a special room, gifts tendered the young couple were on display. Silverware, handpainted china, linens, pictures and many other articles, too numerous to mention, were among the gifts received.

During the evening a musical program was enjoyed the following participating: Miss Bessie Blair, Miss Florence West, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Parker, Leland Newey and F. Earl West. Their numbers were greeted with applause and encores were forthcoming.

Following an evening of social enjoyment in a most daintily prepared buffet luncheon consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and strawberries was served under the direction of Mrs. Sadie West by the Misses Annis Wright, Vera Shipley, Lena Wright, Reta West, Mrs. F. Earl West, Mrs. Lila Richards and Mrs. Jennie Farley.

Delicious fruit punch, prepared by Arne Sumners, was served by that young gentleman during the evening. As the guests departed each was given a rose and a piece of wedding cake, daintily tied with tiny pink satin ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright left for a short honeymoon amid a shower of congratulations and best wishes for a bright, happy and prosperous future and will be at home after June 6 in their cozy apartments in the new Stevens building.

Mrs. Wright is very popular among Ogden's younger social set and a young lady of intellectual attainment and culture. Mr. Wright has many friends both in the business and social world.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the detective and patrol divisions of the police department by Chief Norton this morning. Sergeant H. C. Peterson, who has been a member of the department for the past 12 years, was assigned to fill the position left temporarily vacant by Detective George Wardlaw, who has gone to Europe on a several months' tour.

The position occupied by Sergeant Peterson was assigned to Officer John Hutchins, who has served for a number of weeks as a plain-clothes man. M. Shaughnessy was appointed a special officer, with the probability of being installed as a regular patrolman in the near future, to fill the vacancy left by O. A. Swanson, who is now in the east.
